The Park Board will re-dedicate the Trailside Nature Center at a ceremony to celebrate the re-opening of the Nature Center which has been closed for renovation for almost two years. Trailside is the first city nature center built in Cincinnati, fondly remembered by many in the Cincinnati community as the old "Trailside Museum". This major building renovation project ranged from replacing structural beams and windows to new finishes inside and out. Other improvements include updated electric, a new skylight and making restrooms wheelchair accessible.

Key nature education and camp themes at this urban nature center include astronomy at the historic Wolff Planetarium, aquatic and wetland themes around the lake, and bird watching – Burnet Woods Park has been designated an Important Birding Area (IBA) by the Audubon Society.
